Founding Partner Offer Architecture

Internal strategy doc. Not for partners. Prepared June 2026.

The productised offer: turn a movement or health practitioner's own method into a branded, done-with-you coaching business, powered by the Body Recode engine and delivered through The Body Recode Collective. Capped at ten founding partners.

This is the AI Co-Founder Method made concrete for one vertical, with the BR engine as the tech backbone and Collective as the delivery machine.

01 0. The operating model (LOCKED 2026-06-30)

The single most important thing to get right, and the question every prospect asks first: whose system is this?

They run on the Body Recode engine, branded as theirs. The interpretation engine - scorecard logic, readings, state model, programming/nutrition doctrine, safety floors - is yours. A founding partner gets a white-labelled instance of it. They are NOT bringing their own interpretation system to plug in on day one.

Where their coaching still drives it (so it never feels borrowed): - Modality pack - a yoga teacher runs the yoga brain, not strength relabelled. Native to how they work. - Coach-gating - nothing publishes without their approval. Every reading, plan and block is theirs to edit or veto. - Guidance fields + manual design - they steer the engine, or hand-write programs and nutrition themselves. - Brand, voice, audience, client relationships - entirely theirs, and portable if they leave.

Doctrine A (now) vs B (later): - A (now): every founding partner runs BR's doctrine as the engine's brain. This is what ships. The first ten launch on A. - B (later): their own unique method replacing BR's engine logic - method-injection baked into the interpretation. Comes only AFTER the first ten are live and stable.

Pricing default = per-seat, not rev-share. $20/active client is cleaner to bill and predict. Rev-share is offered only where you trust their reporting, and remains the model for the Powered Partner referral tier.

Attribution = "Powered by Body Recode." Their brand on top, your engine credited underneath - subtle and consistent (same discipline as the BR/Arete boundary).

The honest one-liner for partners: "You run on a proven engine - yours to brand, steer and veto - and your own method gets woven in deeper over time."

02 1. The ladder (how the three roles price)

The three roles in Melisa's proposal are also a pricing ladder. Most partners enter low and climb.

TIER	ROLE	WHAT THEY GET	COMMERCIAL
Powered Partner	Roles 1 + 2	Referral + scorecard funnel attribution	Free to join. Rev-share on anyone they send who joins.
Launch	Role 3 (lite)	Branded instance of the platform, set up for them	Setup fee + subscription + rev-share
Studio	Role 3 (full)	Full Collective build: IP extraction, website, funnel, the lot	Higher setup + subscription + rev-share

Powered Partner is the on-ramp. It costs you almost nothing to offer and it seeds the relationship. Launch and Studio are the real revenue.

03 2. Role 3, broken into two package levels

LAUNCH — "Your platform, powered by Body Recode" For a practitioner who already knows their method and just wants the system. - Branded instance of the platform (scorecard, programming, nutrition, readings, client portal) - "Powered by Body Recode" badge - Branded scorecard funnel - Email + automation stack, re-skinned - Onboarding + training (you teach them the ops) - Inherits your platform roadmap

STUDIO — "Business in a box" The full Collective engagement for a practitioner whose method still needs extracting and whose brand needs building. - Everything in Launch, plus: - IP extraction (Collective Stage 00) - their method becomes the engine's doctrine/config - Brand + website build - Domain, email deliverability, the full setup - Launch kit: post/story templates, first-10-clients playbook - Optional "powered by Body Recode" certification

The difference is the build depth. Launch configures what exists. Studio creates from scratch.

04 3. The three-layer pricing (the stacked money model)

Three revenue layers, mapping to your Hormozi money-model thinking: setup pays for the labour, subscription pays for the rails, per-seat is the compounding asset (see section 0 - per-seat is the locked default, not rev-share).

LAYER	WHAT IT COVERS	LAUNCH (AUD)	STUDIO (AUD)
1. Setup / build (one-time)	IP extraction, website, config, funnel, onboarding	$5,000	$12,000
2. Subscription (monthly)	Hosting, engine licence, updates, support	$400/mo	$600/mo
3. Per active client (ongoing, default)	A fee per active client on their platform (rev-share only where reporting is trusted)	$20/active client	$20/active client

Founding rates (the first ten only): setup at roughly half, locked for life. e.g. Launch setup $2,500, Studio setup $6,000. Subscription locked at the founding number forever. In exchange for the discount you get a case study, testimonial, logo, and roadmap input (see section 5).

Why these numbers hold up: - Setup: bespoke coach-platform builds in the market run $5k to $30k. You are also handing over proprietary IP (the engine). $5k-$12k is conservative and the founding discount makes it a clear yes. - Subscription: your consumer PC sub is ~$240/mo. A B2B platform licence that powers someone's whole business is worth more, not less. $400-$600 is fair. - Rev-share vs per-seat: rev-share aligns you to their success but is harder to verify. Per-active-client ($20/client/mo) is cleaner to bill and predict. Offer per-seat as default, rev-share where you trust the reporting.

05 4. The economics (run the model)

For you, at ten partners (illustrative, mixed Launch/Studio, founding rates): - Setup revenue: ~$40,000 one-time, staggered as you onboard. This is near-term cash, useful for the rent runway. -

Subscription: 10 x ~$450/mo x 12 = ~$54,000/yr recurring. - Per-seat: if each partner averages 15 active clients x $20 = $300/mo each, x 10 = ~$36,000/yr. - Recurring base: ~$90,000/yr, plus setup, plus a B2B proof asset that de-risks the whole Layer 2 SaaS thesis.

For the partner (the ROI you articulate to them): - They pay, say, $400/mo + $20/active client. - If they run 15 clients at $200/mo, that is $3,000/mo revenue, against ~$700/mo in platform cost. They keep ~$2,300/mo on a business they could not have built or run alone. - The setup fee pays back inside the first one to two clients.

That ROI framing is what closes Role 3. They are not buying software. They are buying a business that nets them money from month one. (Build a simple ROI calculator for this, same idea as the Clinic1 competitor’s.)

06 4b. Add-on services: funnel & campaign builds (the upsell)

The base build gets a partner operational: the platform + the scorecard front door. Full conversion funnels are NOT in the base - they are a post-build add-on and the cleanest upsell in the model.

Why outside the base: - Funnels are their own beast (offer stack, email sequences, ad creative, landing pages, challenge mechanics). Bundling them balloons onboarding hours and slows the first ten. - Timing sells it: a partner who is live and getting scorecard leads soon asks “how do I convert and scale?” That is the moment a done-for-you funnel is an easy yes. Ascension, not day one.

The structural edge: Funnel A and Funnel B are already built for Body Recode. The add-on is re-skinning a proven funnel onto their brand, not building from scratch. Same doctrine as the engine: build once, partners consume. They run your funnel mechanics, branded - not invent their own (A-now logic).

The two products (mirroring BR): - Conversion Funnel (= Funnel A): scorecard -> paid ladder. - Challenge Funnel (= Funnel B): free challenge -> paid blueprint.

Pricing: - One-time build fee per funnel (cleaner to start), OR rolled into a higher “Growth” subscription tier (one funnel + campaign support). - DWY (you configure their proven template, they bring creative) = cheaper/faster. DFY (you also produce ad creative via Amanda + write the sequences) = premium.

This is a fourth revenue stream on top of setup + subscription + per-seat, and the one with the most headroom: recurring (new campaign each launch/season) and outcome-priced. Sell it post-activation, never at the front.

07 5. Founding-ten terms (the exchange)

The discount is not charity, it is a trade. Founding partners get: - Setup at ~half, subscription locked for life - Direct input into the platform roadmap - "Founding partner" status and co-marketing - First access to every new feature

In exchange, you get: - A written case study and video testimonial - Permission to use their brand as a logo / proof - A faster yes and a real commitment (not a tyre-kicker) - A live test tenant to harden the onboarding before you go to full price

Cap it at ten and say so. The cap is the scarcity and it keeps your support load survivable.

08 6. Delivery flow (the Collective is the machine)

Map every sale onto the stages you already have: 1. Stage 00 - IP extraction -> their method becomes engine config 2. Build sprint -> website, branded instance, funnel stood up 3. Load-in -> first clients onboarded, partner trained on ops 4. Launch -> their scorecard goes live to their room 5. Ongoing -> subscription + per-seat, they inherit your roadmap

Launch package skips or compresses Stage 00 and the website build. Studio runs the full set.

09 7. Guardrails (what must be true before you sell at full price)

- Legal: IP licence + rev-share agreement must exist (your platform-readiness notes flag this is not live yet). A founding pilot can run on a simple one-page agreement; full price needs the real contract.
- Technical: multi-tenancy (`owner_coach_id` / tenant scoping + RLS on every client-scoped table). You can hand-glove the first one or two on Tier 3a "second coach" scoping, but you cannot scale past that without it.
- Support: each tenant is a support relationship. The cap of ten is what protects you. Do not exceed it to chase revenue.
- Brand boundary: "powered by Body Recode" stays subtle and consistent. Their brand primary, your engine attributed. Same discipline as the BR/Arete boundary.
- Compliance: the engine's doctrine (nutrition floors, etc.) must hold across every tenant. Their clients are their responsibility, the doctrine is yours.

10 8. Melisa, specifically

She is the perfect pilot, not the perfect first sale. - Run her as founding partner zero, at contra or friendly rates (she is already in a contra-style orbit via the gym). - Use her to pressure-test Stage 00 IP extraction and the onboarding flow. Learn what breaks. - Then package and price properly for the other nine. - She becomes your first case study, testimonial, and “powered by Body Recode” logo.

At the coffee: do not quote any of these numbers. Pitch Roles 1 and 2, plant Role 3 as “I am building a founding group of ten and I would want you in it.” Price comes later, once she is in and the offer is formalised.
